

Obeng Nimako Christa, a third year Bachelor of Science Geography and Regional Planning in the University of Cape Coast, Ghana and a Graphic Designer.

I have 3 years of experience working as a self employed Graphic Designer. I have helped build brand identities and promotional material for small cooperate businesses as well as advertising campaigns and digital products for corporate companies.

I have participated in numerous logo competitions and won the logo competition for the State Of Map Africa - 2019 held in Grand Bassam, Ivory Coast. It has really helped me, meeting and interacting with experts and colleagues beyond my interest and field and expanding my knowledge. It has been one of the very best achievements I have had.

I believe seeking knowledge and learning is a key aspect in life and it will always remain that way.

Whether it is learning a basic skill or even working towards a degree level, education and learning is taking place at all times. This is something which I find exciting because it keeps me thinking and makes me realise the power of education and the huge potentials one can reach from it.

Learning is something which is very valuable because it unlocks doors and inspires individuals to try new things and do what they enjoy most and so I aim to achieve more skills and experiences. I also wish to get involved in as many opportunities as possible to enable myself to advance more.
